

January 3, 2007

Economy

'Green' Projects Get Serious; So Does the Money

by Laura Sydell

All Things Considered, December 29, 2006 · Only a few years ago, the backers of renewable energy projects were known for their idealism rather than their business savvy. No more. Serious venture capital money -- in the billions of dollars -- has poured into alternative energy projects since oil prices started climbing.